CITY AND COUNTY OFFICIAL PAPER.

SATURDAY, FEB. 13, 1875.

A Desire for Land.

Manager MARTIN, of the Centinela Colony, arrived yesterday from San Francisco, and will remain here until after the sale, which commences on Monday. About two hundred gentlemen came down on the Senator who intend to become purchasers and a large number of them went out yesterday to examine the land. Several large parties will visit the rancho to-day. A great many shares of stock have been sold within the last few days, and yesterday the company received orders by telegraph from Santa Barbara, San Luis Obispo and San Buenaventura to sell. Altogether some fifty shares were sold yesterday and last evening. The favorable report of all who personally examine the rancho has created a general desire among land seekers to become purchasers. feb19

Appropriations Needed.

A San Francisco paper—the Post—childes Congressman LUTTRELL for endeavoring to obtain appropriations for improving the channels of our rivers, and asserts that we do not need such appropriations. It seems to us that our rivers might be greatly improved. There has been an immense destruction of property in this State during the present Winter by overflows, much of which might have been prevented by the expenditure of a few thousand dollars on river channels. The serious obstructions to the navigation of the Sacramento, San Joaquin and Feather rivers can be removed and channels made which will be amply sufficient for ordinary steamers at low stages of water. The flow of gravel from mines in the foothills and mountains which filled up our river beds has comparatively ceased, and improvements made on those channels now will be permanent. The appropriations certainly are needed. feb19

San Francisco's Selfishness.

Our personal knowledge enables us to say that the San Francisco Chronicle is a diligent and tireless gatherer of information, and we are willing to concede that it aims to make its columns a compendium of news from all parts of the State. But we are inclined to arraign it on a charge of manifesting a slight prejudice against Southern California, and to assume that it partakes to a slight extent of the doctrine held by a number of San Francisco papers, that San Francisco is the Pacific Coast and Montgomery street the State of California. It was an old time theory that the country made the cities, but so many of our San Francisco journalists have seen only so much of this State as their sleepy eyes could gather from the window of a Central Pacific car, that they imagine California is bounded by the Potrero, North Beach, Lone Mountain and the bay, and any proposition to inaugurate an enterprise outside of these boundaries is outside of the world to them, and if they say anything at all about it, it is to oppose it. The Chronicle is not guilty of all this. Its publishers are not wedded to the notion that the city makes the country, and they have editors and writers in their employ who have seen the hills and valleys of California. They know the country and they write intelligently concerning its resources and development. Yet in opposing aid to the Texas Pacific Road the Chronicle lays itself open to the suspicion of not fully understanding the wants of Southern California, or of yielding slightly to the prejudice against this part of the State. The argument that because the Government subsidized one transcontinental road it should not assist in building another, is more logical than convincing. The construction of one road has fully demonstrated the necessity for another. The conclusion that if the Southern overland road is built by one company the trade of Arizona, which properly belongs to the Pacific Coast will be drawn Eastward, is only entitled to consideration on the assumption that the entire road will be built from the East to the West. We expect to remove this danger by requiring that road building shall commence on both sides of the continent and stretch from East to West and from West to East until the connection shall be made in the middle of the nation. The Chronicle admits that if San Diego was its home, as San Francisco is, it would see the Southern Overland project in a different light. This is a frank and honest acknowledgment, and the paper that can make it will find no difficulty in recognizing, and it ought to concede, the claims of the journals and people of Southern California. Referring to the fear that San Diego will divide the trade of San Francisco, the Chronicle does not hesitate to admit the selfishness of San Francisco. This admission offers the HERALD an opportunity to say that it is this innate and ever apparent selfishness of the great city that is impelling the interior of the State to seek other markets and to ask for the opening of other avenues of trade. It is this selfishness of San Francisco that gave birth to and fosters the desire to divide the State. It is this selfishness that will aid the building of the Southern Overland Railroad and ultimately create the State of Southern California. feb19

Misdirected Energy.

There is enough misdirected energy in this world to more than duplicate all the great improvements that now exist, and something to spare. A youthful canine of the right breed will gnaw at a root until one would think he never intended to let up. Hunger may come and teeth may give out, but the pluck, energy and hang-on-iveness of that puppy is for all time. We always admired pluck, and in a contest between a ram and a gate-post, our sympathy is always with the ram. We cannot endorse his judgment, but the steady persistence with which he goes for that obdurate old gate-post, never fails to excite our admiration. This trait or characteristic in our nature impels us to a profound sympathy with the misdirected energy and puppy-at-a-root stick-to-it-ativeness which crops out in some of our Councilmen. There is more of the ram-at-a-gate-post quality of determination to do something, without the vaguest idea of how to do it, in our City Council than is developed in a school rebellion or the strategic efforts of an old maid to capture a husband. If that energy could be properly guided and judiciously directed, Los Angeles would furnish, ideas, plans, models, suggestions and municipal axioms for all the cities in the world; but alas! the power is wasted; the mighty engine is useless. The moment the throttle-valve is opened the machine runs away with itself. Buzz, whir, bang, slam—and by the time everybody has got out of the way, the crazy thing has reversed its motion and is going the other way with lightning speed. Now, all this might be remedied by a balance-wheel, but the machine ain't made for a balance-wheel. There is no place to put it; nothing to fasten it to. A wonderful waste of eloquence and energy. At one meeting of the Council it is ordered that saloons shall pay a fabulous license or close up. The machine is on the moral tack. At the next meeting of the learned body the Marshal reports that if the license ordinance is enforced, a great many saloons will close up and the city's monthly revenue will be reduced five hundred dollars. The machine reverses motion and the license ordinance is repealed. The machine is on the pecuniary tack. A little later and the machine goes off at a tangent—there shall be no license. The machine is on the imbecile tack. Still later, and the machine goes for closing up saloons at midnight. The machine is on the spiteful tack. Oh, the misdirected energy of our Council! Under an efficient overseer how it would grade a railroad, dig a canal, develop a mine, or rush brick up a ladder! feb19

The Work Goes On.

Still more active measures are about to be inaugurated in the Los Angeles and Independence Railroad enterprise. Chief Engineer CRAWFORD returned from San Francisco yesterday with instructions to commence operations immediately on the wharf at Truxton, and the grading between the water and this city. Cajon Pass, the only practical gate through the barriers which oppose the passage of a railroad from this valley to the open country East of the mountains, is now in the possession of the company and a force of men will be kept on that part of the road until it is ready for the ties and iron. Mr. CRAWFORD's instructions are to have the road in running order from Truxton to Cajon Pass within five months from to-day. To do this he will work every man whose services can be made useful and expend a large amount of money. The surveying force will take the field at once and early next week grading will commence at Truxton. We are unable at present to name the line of the road, but that it will be built is a foregone conclusion. Mr. CRAWFORD reports the San Francisco capitalists, who are interested in the Panamint and other Inyo county mines and consequently in the road, determined to push it ahead as rapidly as men and money will do it. They argue that cheaper transportation than they now have or than the Southern Pacific can furnish them is a necessity which can only be met by this road, and taking this view of the case they hold that the sooner it is completed to a point that will reduce the cost of transportation to and from the mines, the better. Hence they are anxious that the car should be running between Truxton and Cajon Pass within the next five months. feb19

California Appropriations.

WASHINGTON, February 9th.—The House Committee on Commerce—Chairman Wheeler absent—unanimously agreed to report favorably on appropriations for San Diego River, $80,000; Wilmington, $30,000; Oakland, $100,000; but it is expected that Wheeler will insist on retrenchment, in which case, one item may be cut off. Clayton is working to secure $25,000 for the Sacramento River, but it is now doubtful if he will succeed. Captain Mullin, claiming to represent settlers on the line of the Southern Pacific, says the settlers are willing to pay $2.50 per acre, instead of $1.25, as proposed in the amendment; but oppose giving the Southern Pacific the right to demand any greater price. feb19

Senator Mitchell Creates a Sensation.

WASHINGTON, February 9th.—Senator Mitchell met Crawford, correspondent of the Chicago Tribune, on the floor of the House and accused him of being the author of an article in the Times more than a year ago, containing statements concerning the life of Mitchell, referring to his former career under the name of Hippie. Quite a scene followed. It is reported that Mitchell told Crawford that he would hear from him again. feb19

Tilton's Relations with Victoria Woodhull.

NEW YORK, February 9th.—The cross-examination of Tilton was continued this morning, but nothing new or interesting was brought out, it being simply a repetition of statements made in the direct examination with regard to the arbitration with Bowen and business matters. Witness was questioned as to how Mrs. Woodhull got the information upon which she based the story she published in November, 1872. Witness went to see Mrs. Woodhull in May, 1871, when she mentioned to him nearly all the extravagant stories she subsequently published, but she did not give him any authority. Witness did not think that the words "eminent teacher" mentioned in her statement, would be understood to mean Beecher. The card itself did not convey that impression to his mind, but her threat of attending to the clergy and abbess and gent's furnishing goods, if he did not give her the information, led him to that conclusion. He thought Woodhull obtained the information indirectly from the lips of Mrs. Morse. The story went directly from her lips alone, not from witness, nor Moulton, nor Beecher. When I spoke of this story I never spoke to Mrs. Tilton's disparagement, but I did to Beecher's, and if it had not been for Mrs. Tilton's protection I would have allowed him to go to destruction four years ago. I never had any confidences with Henry Ward Beecher in my life. Mrs. Tilton was under no obligation to keep a secret with reference to Beecher. I selected whom I would speak to on the subject, and told them what I saw fit. It was from Mrs. Morse's leakage that the story came out, sometimes at his and also at Moulton's residence. Remembered going to Coner Island with her, though she always kept him in hot water about this affair. "Didn't know where she got her reference to the 'Catharine Gaunt' letter sent him by his wife. He was called with her about it. She didn't get the information from him. Witness marched in the communist procession, but not with Woodhull. He was in arm with John Swinton. The procession was in honor of young Russell, slain by French Government. He considered Russell a pure young man and a martyr. Honored him, and was proud of the part he took in the procession. Mr. Evans read an extract from Woodhull's biography, written by Mr. Tilton, which contained an extravagant eulogy of her, saying that her career had been as singular as that of any heroine, her ability was rare and her character of the rarest type, and whose personal life was a whole drama of pathos. Evans asked: "Did you express your opinion of her at that time?" Answer—"I believe she was a woman much misapprehended. Mr. Beecher, Mr. Moulton and myself were then engaged in a plot to set up this scandal, and wrote what I thought would please her." Tilton's poem, "Sir Marmaduke's Musings," was read and witness said that some parts represented his own feelings. feb19

Page's Anti-Coolie Bill.

WASHINGTON, February 9th.—Page, with the Hon. Leonard Meyer, Chairman of the sub-committee on Foreign Affairs, had an interview yesterday with Secretary Fish, at the State Department, with reference to Page's bill in relation to Chinese immigration. The Secretary warmly approved the provisions of the bill, and said that he would go to the utmost limits to put a stop to the infamous system of coolie importation. Page is preparing an elaborate argument on the subject. It will be set up in this and other proven facts showing the iniquity of the system. feb19

Tom Scott's Road.

WASHINGTON, February 9th.—Scott has succeeded in consolidating nearly all the Southern Representatives and will make a sectional fight. The entire Kentucky delegation, headed by Beck, are pledged to support the Texas Pacific. feb19

Senator Stewart in Washington.

WASHINGTON, February 9th.—Senator Stewart was in his seat to-day. His vote is needed in the Pacific Railroad Committee to decide the fate of the Texas Pacific bill, which stands five to five. feb19

Washburn Rises to Explain.

NEW YORK, February 11th.—Minister Washburn telegraphs to the Herald from Paris that he has received $10,000 or any amount whatever for getting the Fremont bonds placed on the Paris Bourse. On the contrary, he furnished the State Department concerning them. feb19

The Louisiana Troubles.

NEW ORLEANS, February 11th.—The proposition of the Congress to the adjustment of differences, was submitted to the Congressional Committee and rejected by that committee. feb19

Florida Sends a Democrat.

SAVANNAH, Ga., February 11th.—C. W. Jones, of Escambia county, Democratic candidate for United States Senator, has been elected from Florida. feb19

Congressional News.

WASHINGTON, February 11th.—A conference will be held to-morrow between Secretary Bristow and the Attorney-General on the proposition relative to taxes on the earnings of the Union Pacific Railroad. It is now thought the proposition will not be accepted, but that some compromise will be made. At the instance of Sargent, the Senate Appropriations Committee agreed to recommend an increase of the item in the Indian Bill of Arizona and New Mexico for the Apaches from $450,000 to $550,000. feb19

Address by Matt Carpenter.

MILWAUKEE, February 9th.—Senator Matt Carpenter delivered an address at the Academy of Music this evening. He referred briefly to his recent defeat, which he attributed largely to the opposition of the railroads. He paid a high compliment to Mr. Cameron, Senator-elect, whom he knew to be a firm and consistent Republican. He reviewed some length the recent speech of ex-Senator Doolittle, and commented severely upon the recommendations of that gentleman. feb19

The mammoth lighter of the Railroad Company will be aloft in a day or two. feb19

NEW TO-DAY.

An Act to Prevent Cruelty to Animals. A great many dogs are in peril of being killed by being allowed to run loose in the streets, so in order to protect the faithful hounds we have introduced a bill to prevent the use of any kind of dog-collars, chains, dog-leashes, or anything to keep a dog comfortable in his own yard. We have also provided for the comfort of the human family by importing a large variety of elegant walking-sticks, English suspenders, and with all that you must not forget to get your pants for attention to the clergy and abbess and gent's furnishing goods, if he did not give her the information, led him to that conclusion. He thought Woodhull obtained the information indirectly from the lips of Mrs. Morse. The story went directly from her lips alone, not from witness, nor Moulton, nor Beecher. When I spoke of this story I never spoke to Mrs. Tilton's disparagement, but I did to Beecher's, and if it had not been for Mrs. Tilton's protection I would have allowed him to go to destruction four years ago.
